Collective Impact Core – Trauma & Resilience Common Agenda

- Guiding Principle #6 – Cultural, Historical, & Gender Issues
 - o Definition – The community actively overcomes cultural stereotypes and biases, is culturally responsive, leverages the healing value of traditional cultural connections and recognizes and addresses historical trauma.
 - o Examples:
 - MSU-Extension shared that their organization collects demographic, race/ethnicity, gender, and similar information as part of participants registering for their programs. They identified opportunity to update these questions to ensure their processes are inclusive of culture, history, and gender. This was shared as an example of how organizations embrace culture, history, and gender inclusivity in their operations.
 - Lenawee Community Mental Health shared that their organization changed signage in their bathrooms to be more gender inclusive. There was previous signage that stated not to flush feminine products in the toilets. This signage has been updated to state not to flush any products other than toilet paper. This is an example of their organization cultivating inclusivity into their physical environment.

CHIP Strategy & Collaborations

Agency Spotlight Presentation:

Lenawee Health Network participants did a demonstration of interactive mapping tools from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. The mapping tools can be used by individuals and organizations to assess community health needs and Social Vulnerable portions of the community from the census tract to the state level.

- Centers for Disease Control and Prevention: Social Vulnerability Index \(SVI\) Mapping Tool
 - o Social vulnerability refers to the potential negative effects on communities caused by external stresses on human health. Such stresses include natural or human-caused disasters, or disease outbreaks. Reducing social vulnerability can decrease both human suffering and economic loss.
- Centers for Disease Control and Prevention PLACES: Local Data for Better Health Mapping Tool
 - o PLACES is a collaboration between CDC, the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, and the CDC Foundation. PLACES provides health data for small areas across the country. This allows local health departments and jurisdictions, regardless of population size and rurality, to better understand the burden and geographic distribution of health measures in their areas and assist them in planning public health interventions.
 - o PLACES provides model-based, population-level analysis and community estimates of health measures to all counties, places (incorporated and census designated places), census tracts, and ZIP Code Tabulation Areas (ZCTAs) across the United States. Learn more about PLACES.
